following a decision by the Court of Arbitration in Sport, Russia must be referred to as ROC (Russian Olympic Committee) from December 17, 2020 to December 16, 2022, as a result of doping violations during the 2014 Olympic Winter Games.

^because the tournament was reduced to eight teams, none were demoted for 2023

Tournament Format

There were two divisions of four teams, and each played a round-robin series in a preliminary round. All teams qualified to the playoff quarter-finals and were re-seeded to determine matchups.

Venues: Kaufbeuren=Erdgas Schwaben Arena; Landshut=Fanatec Arena

*Olympic Athletes from Russia

Tournament Format

Eight teams were placed in two groups and played a round-robin series within each group. The groups were arranged vertically, not horizontally, so the top-ranked teams played in Group A and the lower-ranked in Group B. The top two teams from Group A advanced directly to the semi-finals, while the third and fourth place teams in Group A qualified for the quarter-finals along with the top two teams of Group B. The quarter-finals had 3A-2B and 4A-1B matchups. Winners advanced to the semi-finals, and those winners to the gold-medal game. Semi-finals losers played for bronze. The losers of the quarter-finals went to the classification round along with the third and fourth teams in Group B. Those winners played for fifth place while the losers played for seventh place. The team that finished eighth played a best-of-three series with the winner of Division I to determine which team qualified for the top level of the 2015 Women's Worlds and which team was relegated to Division I.

*following a decision by the Court of Arbitration in Sport, Russia must be referred to as ROC (Russian Olympic Committee) from February 19, 2021 to December 16, 2022, as a result of doping violations during the 2014 Olympic Winter Games.

Tournament Format

Ten teams were placed in two groups and played a round-robin series within each group. The groups were arranged vertically, not horizontally, so the top-ranked teams played in Group A and the lower-ranked in Group B.

All teams from Group A and the top two teams from Group B advanced to the quarter-finals. Winners advanced to the semi-finals, and those winners to the gold-medal game. Semi-finals losers played for bronze.

Venues: N=National Indoor Stadium; W=Wukesong Sports Centre

Tournament Format

Eight teams were placed in two groups and played a round-robin series within each group. For the first time, the groups were arranged vertically, not horizontally, so the top-ranked teams played in Group A and the lower-ranked in Group B. All teams from Group A advanced to the playoffs. The top two went directly to the semi-finals while the bottom two played a crossover quarter-finals with the top two from Group B. The bottom two in Group B played a best two-of-three series in the Relegation Round.

20th WOMEN'S WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP March 31-April 10, 2020 Halifax & Truro, Canada

GROUP A—Canada, Finland, Russia, Switzerland, United States

GROUP B—Czech Republic, Denmark, Germany, Hungary, Japan

CANCELLED BECAUSE OF CORONAVIRUS

20th WOMEN'S WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP August 20-31, 2021 Calgary, Canada

*originally scheduled for April 7-17, 2021, in Halifax/Truro, Canada; postponed to May 6-16, 2021, in Halifax/Truro, but cancelled April 21, 2021; rescheduled April 30, 2021 for August 20-31, 2021.

Final Placing

Gold.....	Canada	6th.....	Japan
Silver.....	United States	7th.....	Czech Republic
Bronze.....	Finland	8th.....	Germany
4th.....	Switzerland	9th.....	Hungary
5th.....	ROC [^]	10th.....	Denmark

*Because of coronavirus no team was promoted from Division I-A in 2020 and no team will be demoted from the top level for 2022

[^]because of sanctions for doping, Russia was called ROC (Russia Olympic Committee)

Tournament Format

Eight teams were placed in two groups and played a round-robin series within each group. The groups were arranged vertically, not horizontally, so the top-ranked teams played in Group A and the lower-ranked in Group B. All teams from Group A advanced to the playoffs and the top three teams in Group B also advanced to a quarter-finals. Because there was no relegation, the bottom two teams in Group B finished 9th and 10th.

*On February 28, 2022, the IIHF Council held an extra-ordinary meeting (virtually) at which time it was decided that, because of the Russian invasion of Ukraine and the Belarussian support of the invasion, ROC/Russia and Belarus would be expelled from all IIHF tournaments for at least the remainder of 2022. As a result, Sweden, the next-highest team in the World Rankings, was promoted to the top division.

following a decision by the Court of Arbitration in Sport, Russia must be referred to as ROC (Russian Olympic Committee) from December 17, 2020 to December 16, 2022, as a result of doping violations during the 2014 Olympic Winter Games.

^demoted to Division I-A for 2023

Tournament Format

Ten teams were placed in two groups and played a round-robin series within each group. The groups were arranged vertically, not horizontally, so the top-ranked teams played in Group A and the lower-ranked in Group B. All teams from Group A advanced to the playoffs and the top three teams in Group B also advanced to a quarter-finals. The last-place team in Group B was relegated to Division I-A for 2023.

*demoted to Division I-A for 2024

Tournament Format

Ten teams were placed in two groups and played a round-robin series within each group. The groups were arranged vertically, not horizontally, so the top-ranked teams played in Group A and the lower-ranked in Group B. All teams from Group A advanced to the playoffs and the top three teams in Group B also advanced to a quarter-finals. The last-place team in Group B was relegated to Division I-A for 2024.

Venues: All games played at CAA Centre

*Promoted from Division I-A in 2020; Relegated to Division I-A for 2023

*On February 28, 2022, the IIHF Council held an extra-ordinary meeting (virtually) at which time it was decided that, because of the Russian invasion of Ukraine and the Belarussian support of the invasion, ROC/Russia and Belarus would be expelled from all IIHF tournaments for at least the remainder of 2022. As a result, Sweden was promoted from Group B to Group A and Slovakia was promoted from Division I-A to the top division.

following a decision by the Court of Arbitration in Sport, Russia must be referred to as ROC (Russian Olympic Committee) from December 17, 2020 to December 16, 2022, as a result of doping violations during the 2014 Olympic Winter Games.

^demoted to Division I-A for 2023

Tournament Format

There were two divisions of four teams, and each played a round-robin series in a preliminary round. The groups were determined by World Ranking, the top four being placed in Group A and the next four in Group B. All teams from Group A and the top two teams from Group B qualified for the playoffs. *Promoted from Division I-A in 2022; Relegated to Division I-A for 2024

Tournament Format

There were two divisions of four teams, and each played a round-robin series in a preliminary round. The groups were determined by World Ranking, the top four being placed in Group A and the next four in Group B. All teams from Group A and the top two teams from Group B qualified for the playoffs. The top two teams in Group A qualified directly to the semi-finals, while the third and fourth teams played the top two teams in Group B in the quarter-finals. The last two teams in Group B played a best-of-three series to determine which team would be relegated.

Venues: A=Ostersund Arena A, B=Ostersund Arena B

^Promoted from Division I-A in 2023; Relegated to Division I-A for 2025

Tournament Format

There were two divisions of four teams, and each played a round-robin series in a preliminary round. The groups were no longer vertical, whereby the top four were placed in Group A and the next four in Group B. Instead, the traditional model of dividing teams equally between the groups was used. All teams advanced to the playoffs, but the two teams who lost in the quarter-finals by the worst goals differential then played one game to determine relegation.

Venues: All games played at Arena Zug
